Introduction

Human Resources and Payroll will begin utilizing Dynamic Forms, a web-based interface that allows departments to submit forms through an online workflow, for certain Human Resources maintained forms. Dynamic Forms will give departments the flexibility to submit forms online, track the status of forms in the workflow, and retrieve and save HTML and PDF versions of forms.

While Dynamic Forms will keep a history of forms received, limited space capacity and changes to forms and processes limits the ability for forms to be retained indefinitely. Therefore, departments still must maintain a copy of forms within their department's personnel files.

Forms can be accessed through a direct link provided to departments or at HR Liaison Resources.

To track or view draft/submitted forms, users can log in to Dynamic Forms Home.

Unit Approvers

When submitting a form, users will be asked to list the name and email address of their unit approver. Once the form is submitted, it will go to their unit approver for approval. All approvers will be reminded if they have a pending form every 2 days.

Additional Approvals

If a unit wishes to require additional signatures internally, such as department heads, the submitter has the option to “Save Progress” instead of clicking “Next” to submit the form. Once they have saved the form, they may wish to log into their “Pending/Draft Forms” to print the HTML version of the form and have others sign before officially submitting. However, submitters must remember to log back in and submit the form!

Tracking a Form

Pending/Draft Forms

The submitter will receive a confirmation email when 1) they have submitted a form and 2) when all required signatures have been collected and the form reaches Human Resources for final review and processing.

The unit approver will receive an email to review and approve the form once it is submitted.

Submitters and approvers will be able to log into Dynamic Forms and review the status of forms. Unfortunately, the Form Name is the only identifying information from the "Pending/Draft Forms" view. Therefore, it is highly encouraged to maintain all confirmation emails so that you may use the email timestamp to keep track of the forms. Of course, you can always sort through the forms by clicking the PDF or HTML for the full details, but ain't nobody got time for that.

The following form has been submitted for approval:

Forms History

Once a form has reached HR for final processing, the form can be viewed in “Forms History” as opposed to “Pending/Draft Forms.” While Dynamic Forms will keep a history of forms received, limited space capacity and changes to forms and processes limits the ability for forms to be retained indefinitely. Therefore, departments still must maintain a copy of forms within their department’s personnel files.
